This fresh evidence of friendly feeling and hearty co-operation between the two governments was received here today with manifest gratification.

Nothing New.
Any developments in the Mexican situation seemed to be moving under the surface; there appeared to be no change in the diplomatic situation and no indication that the American government was deviating from its attitude of careful watching and patient waiting for the elimination of Huerta.

Sayre, avoiding the gaily decorated gangway and hunting-bedecked pathway arranged for them, slipped quietly aboard the liner George Washington and sailed for Europe on their honeymoon. A great crowd on the docks at Hoboken was keenly disappointed. Even President Wilson did not know of his daughter's and son-in-law's arrival on the ship until he found them in their cabin five minutes before sailing time.

President Wilson, accompanied by Miss Eleanor Wilson and Dr. Cary Grayson, reached the boat half an hour before the George Washington was due to start. The ship's officers stood at attention as he came on deck and the band played "Star Spangled Banner." The crowd cheered. There was a wait of fifteen minutes for the Sayres. Nobody seemed to know where they were. Finally the president entered the suit assigned to the pair and to his surprise there they were with a few friends and many flowers.

They get you where you want to go quicker and at less expense than any other medium. And the other traveling companions are very desirable friends of yours—the local dealers who handle your goods.

REPORT OVER SCORE OF HUNTERS KILLED

Heavy Toll of Dead and Injured in Deer Hunting Accidents in North Woods.

Milwaukee, Nov. 28.—Twenty-four hunters gave up their lives in Wisconsin and northern Michigan and many more were wounded during the season which opened November 10 and will close at midnight tomorrow.

Most of the fatalities were due to men being mistaken for deer and shot down by excited persons, despite the bright red caps which most of the hunters wore. Others were killed by accidental discharge of guns, while two met death by bullets from game in unknown lands.

Two men, Clayton Fontenay and Leonard Engas, were accidentally shot and killed by their brothers. Two others were seriously wounded by brothers.

One of the saddest incidents of the season was the killing of Mrs. Frank Haskins of Bennett, Wis., the only woman to meet death during the season. Her son had just returned from a trip into the woods and was showing his mother how he had killed his first deer. The gun was exploded and the woman instantly killed.

Many children under 15 years of age were counted during the season, but Lea Schnepp of Wausau, 8 years old, was the youngest to be fatally shot.

Reports from the north say that fewer deer were killed this year than for several years. There have been more hunters and more deer than usual, but lack of snow has made the season very unsatisfactory.

SPECIAL SESSION OF RECORD LENGTH

When Adjournment is Reached Monday Congress Will Have Been at Work Exactly 238 Days.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—When the present special session of congress expires by limitation at noon next Monday it will have established a record as the longest special session in the history of the national legislative body. It was on April 7 that the special session convened, pursuant to the call of President Wilson, to revise the tariff and to pass a new banking and currency law. When adjournment is reached Monday, the session will have continued at work exactly 238 days, a record for length never before made since the establishment of the national government.

The longest previous extra session was held in the Sixty-first congress for the enactment of the Payne tariff law. That session began on March 5 and ended Aug. 5, 1909, making a total of 144 days. When the special session of the Fifty-fifth congress was called together by President McKinley it took 131 days to place the Dingley tariff law on the statute books, being in session from March 15, 1897, until July 24 of the same year. The special session of the Fifty-eighth congress was called together Nov. 9, 1903, and continued at work until the regular session of that year, which met on Dec. 7, continuing but twenty-nine days in all. On August 7, 1893, the special session of the Fifty-third congress was called to meet and remained at work until Nov. 3 of the same year, being at work but eighty-nine days.

In reconstruction days, immediately following the civil war, there was an extra session which convened on Dec. 1, 1867, and ran into the regular session, which began on July 1, 1868. This was a span of 274 days, and would have constituted an unbeaten record except that there were recesses from March 20 to July 1, and from July 20 to Nov. 21.

ARMY ELEVEN WINS BY A SAFE MARGIN IN GAME WITH NAVY

West Point Cadets Use Open Style of Football to Defeat Annapolis Opponents 22 to 9.

Polo Grounds, New York, Nov. 28.—Forty thousand spectators, among them the president of the United States, gathered here this afternoon under threatening skies to watch the annual football contest between Annapolis and West Point, the first ever held in this city. They represented high officialdom in Washington, high officialdom in New York, Philadelphia and other cities, and the high enthusiasm of more humble lovers of the game.

Both teams, the navy, captained by Midshipman Gilchrist, the army by Cadet Hoge, were reported in perfect condition for the fray and ready as never before to do or die for their colors.

The Navy won the toss and selected the west goal, giving the Army the kicking. The president and his party were late.

Navy scored a field goal during the first quarter.

Army scored a field goal and touch down in the second, and Navy a goal from place in the third.

Score end first half, Navy 6, Army 9.

During the third period Navy scored a placement goal, making the score 9 to 9.

Game Opens Brilliantly.
The Army kicked off the Navy's fifteen yard line and the ball was run back to the thirty-five yard line before the army stopped the navy back, alling made the run. The first scrimmage was very rough, being in session from March 15, 1897, until July 24 of the same year. The insane manner with which he tried to impress the jury during the trial, was absent today. He spoke calmly and without gestures.

SPITTOONS OF WOOD ARE FIRE BREEDERS

Chief Klein Finds Flagrant Disregard of Simplest Fire Prevention Methods.

"Spittoons of wood filled with saw dust are fire incubators of the worst sort, and I have found a number of them in my inspection as deputy state fire marshal," says Chief of the Fire Department, Chief Klein. A lighted cigar stub carelessly thrown into a fire-breeder of this sort and then left undisturbed, proprietors of the place leaving, perhaps and looking up for night may easily kindle a serious conflagration.

Defective wiring is one of the most flagrant fire hazards which Chief Klein has found thus far, and there is practically no excuse for it. Electric lights, when the wiring is correct, are the safest lights, but carelessness again plays a large part in the many defective wiring jobs, according to the chief.

Dangerous collections of rubbish, defective chimneys, stoves and heating apparatus, also figure in the list of defects which are increasing the fire hazard in the business section of the city.

Chief Klein has his first inspection about four-fifths completed and has sent out over sixty notices to property owners. His reports to the state fire marshal serve to increase the clerical work connected with his office.

ST. JOHN'S PARISH TO DEDICATE CHURCH

TAKES FORMAL POSSESSION OF ITS NEW BUILDING TO-MORROW.

HOLD THREE SERVICES

Ceremonies of Dedication to be Conducted by District President, The Rev. A. F. Augustine.

St. John's German Lutheran parish of the Iowa synod tomorrow formally takes possession of its new church building at the corner of North Bluff Street and Pease Court, just completed at a cost of about $20,000. When the congregation worships in it for the first time it will find the church complete in every particular, equipped with a new pipe organ, with an altar, and beautiful painted glass windows representing important episodes in the life of Jesus Christ. The building is modern in every respect, commodious, and closely adapted to its purpose.

Three religious services will commemorate the occupation of the new building, the first of which, set for 10 a. m., will be the dedicatory service. It will be conducted by the Rev. A. F. Augustine of Eau Claire, president of the Wisconsin district of the Iowa synod. He will also preach the sermon. The afternoon service, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, will be led by the Rev. H. Brodow of Sumner, Iowa, and services in the English language will be held at 7 p. m., the Rev. Otto Wilke of Madison being the speaker. On Tuesday evening there will be a program of vocal and instrumental music, the Rev. Brodow acting as organist.

If the weather in the morning is favorable the congregation will assemble before the main entrance. The building committee and the officers of the congregation will take their places on the platform and steps and the contractor, Emil Pautz, will deliver the keys of the church to the Rev. S. W. Fuchs. The door will be opened in the name of the Trinity and the dedication rites those of the Lutheran church. Collections will be taken for the church building fund. Meals will be served at 2:30 p. m. in the evening in the church basement by the ladies of the congregation, the proceeds of which will go to the building fund.

The Rev. Brodow who conducts the sacred concert on Monday evening is an accomplished musician and will give an organ recital. Home talent will present solos and duets and the church choir will assist. Admission is free but a collection will be taken.

The corner stone of the new edifice was laid with appropriate exercises on June 8 and construction has advanced steadily since that time with the exception of delay caused by two shipments of the material.

The church was built on a high concrete foundation so as to provide a large basement and the walls are of rough faced, purple hue vitrified brick lined with a light colored tile throughout. In style of the interior it is a modern edifice, the main entrance being through a handsome square tower at the outer corner.

The auditorium has a high ceiling crossed by large, lightly placed beams, and the floor inclines to the front. A small balcony has been placed to the rear. The altar, a beautiful piece of workmanship in white enamel with panels in a delicate blue edged with gold, stands in a recess at the center of the front. Set into the base is a reproduction in figures and bold relief of the painting, "The Last Supper." The pulpit placed to the right of the altar has the same coloring and is of a design in close harmony with it. The pipe organ stands to the left. It is of the two manual, tubular pneumatic type with all modern improvements and was manufactured by the Wicks Pipe Organ Company at Highland, Illinois. The electrically propelled blower is located in the basement.

Two large art glass windows, six smaller ones, and a rosette window at the rear illuminate the auditorium. There is also one on either side of the altar. All represent subjects recorded in the gospel or in the history of the church. On the right are "Jesus at the Door," from the picture by Hoffman, "Emmanuel," at Ploekhorst, and "Christ the Conqueror," by Pfannenschmidt of Munich. On the left side of the church are "Jesus the Good Shepherd," by Hoffman, "Golgotha," and "David." In the rosette window is a picture of Dr. Martin Luther, and in the pipe organ stands "The Ascension." All the windows were painted by Carl Reinmann of Milwaukee, who studied for three years at the famous art school in Weimar, Germany.

The pews are of hardwood finished in mahogany and are of a distinctive design. Seating is provided for about five hundred people. The indirect system of artificial lighting is used. There are three chandeliers suspended from chains from the apex of the ceiling. They are vessels of hexagonal shape, ivory white, touched with gold, with designs in relief. The steam heating radiators are imbedded in the walls beneath the windows so as not to encumber the aisles.

On the ground or basement floor is a large room for Sunday school or social use and adjoining it is a kitchen with large serving windows and equipped with gas stove, sink and cabinets. To the right is a room for the use of confirmation classes, and at the rear are the heating plant and coal bins. The basement is also provided with a sanitary drinking fountain and a lavatory.

The plans of the church were drawn by Hilton & Sadler, and it was constructed by Emil Pautz. Sub-contractors for plumbing, heating, lighting, and furniture were let to various parties.

St. John's German Lutheran parish was organized twenty-three years ago. Its first pastor was the Rev. George Knappstein, who died while holding that position and preparing a class for confirmation. He was succeeded by the Rev. Paul Werth, and five years ago the Rev. Sigmund W. Fuchs took charge of the parish. One hundred and thirty-five families now attend the church and will appreciate greatly the commodious quarters in which they will worship. The little frame church was long ago outgrown. Much credit for the successful building of the new church is due to the Rev. Fuchs, who has worked hard unceasingly that it might be a structure of beauty and of the highest utility.

PE-RU-NA
THE GREAT TONIC

LINK AND PIN DANGER COURTED BY BRIGHT HEADLIGHTS

Brilliant Electric Lamps Make Signals Indistinct Say Engineers—Attract Animals to Their Death.

Considerable attention is drawn among the Janesville railroad men on the success of the new state law that compels all roads to equip every locomotive except switch engines, with powerful electric headlights. Local engineers and conductors were found in the praise at first, but longer use brought forth many defects.

"The greatest trouble experienced is that the light is so powerful and penetrating that it is impossible to distinguish signal lights at any distance." The red and green lights become colorless when struck by the headlights, and an engineer is liable to run through a closed switch, unable to tell the color in time to stop. In the case of the block system the engineers are unable to ascertain the signal until they are within a hundred feet of the tower because of the spreading rays.

Firemen and engineers state that the new powerful lights are certain destruction to animals who are fascinated by the light by instinct and fall prey to the engines, before they either sense enough to jump from the road bed. The instinct is the same that attracts a deer and makes "jacking" successful. Rabbits are especially sensitive to the light and several engineers in discussing the matter stated that if a bunny a half mile away sees the light, he will immediately start toward the locomotive to his death. Skunks, the trainmen say, will stand in the path of the light until the locomotive is almost upon them and then endeavor to jump. Rabbits, gofers, and even birds are the other animals to fall a prey to this fatal habit.

Because the recent changes made by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road officials, in the train schedules, both passenger and freight, has decreased the mileage, considerably lowering trainmen's wages, committees appointed by the local trainmen's brotherhoods, conferred with St. P. Theuer, superintendent of the Prairie du Chien and Mineral Point divisions on Friday, in an effort to adjust the schedule to the satisfaction of the railroad men. The conductors were represented by Fred Frankfurter, M. Durwid, and Charles Mooney of Brodhead. The engineers named D. P. Davey, Charles Gregory and Thomas Murphy as their committee.

GINK AND DINK. THERE IS NO CHEER FOR PETEY.

Sport Snap Shots

Old Tom McCarey, the veteran scrap promoter, is going to have his refereeing done from the outside of the ring hereafter. And the reason why he is going over to the English faction is because he would like, if possible, to encourage more fighting and less waltz clogging in the ring. "Too many good fights are spoiled," says McCarey, "by clinching and covering up and little real scrappling. Hereafter in my bouts there will be a noticeable lack of this sort of thing."

of thing. The referee will remain on the outside of the ropes and disqualify any fighter who refuses to break when ordered. That'll put a stop to this pink tea style of bout and it will encourage the real animated battling."

Wilbert Robinson's chief duty in taking hold of the Brooklyn outfit will be to develop a young pitcher or two who can be depended upon to take a regular turn in the box next season and deliver the stuff. Perhaps this more than anything else accounts for Robinson's election as the new Brooklyn manager. Aside from the pitching staff that Brooklyn bunch is a regular first division outfit. They are there or in that neighborhood in every department save the twirlers. And Robinson has a talent for young pitchers. He is given the credit for Ruben Alvarado's success. When "Robby" took hold of the Rubie he was as wild and unsteady as a gate on a one hinge and Mugsy McGraw gave him the best of his poor stuff. Robby's specialty is taming the wild ones and he managed to make Marquard not only presentable as big league material, but developed him into the world-beater he proved to be. Robinson also took Tesreau in hand when the Dear was a roaring thing cyclone in his box and calmed him down to his present efficiency. McGraw had given both of these up as hopeless. The Brooklyn management has some young pitching green goods in tow and they are hoping that among them there is an embryo Marquard or Tesreau. Robby will be able to make them show it anybody can. He will be a bench manager, as he is no longer active, but is a wonder on the coaching lines. The fact that he did not put a prohibitive price on his services, was willing to sign a one-year contract and managed to get a release from the Giants that cost the Brooklyn management very little, all urged his selection by the Brooklyn managers. Robinson had tried the managing game before, with very indifferent success, when he took hold of the Baltimore Orioles some years ago. But it is not surprising that he wasn't able to do much there, for the Orioles at that time were a very ragged and inefficient levy of pill takers.

Apparently Ty Cobb aspires to be the Woods Hutchinson of baseball. Ty has recently stepped up and knocked the bottom out of one of our favorite baseball fallacies—namely, the question of a player's "batting eye." There's no such thing, says Ty. Ball players don't have batting eyes; they hit by instinct. Those who believe that a player keeps his eye on the ball from the time it leaves a pitcher's hand till it crosses the plate—which isn't long—have got a funny idea," says Cobb. "A player sees the ball leave the pitcher's hand, of course, but he doesn't keep his eyes glued on it till he connects. If he did or even if he tried to, his batting average would be about nil. A man at bat hits by instinct. The natural batsman doesn't worry about 'batting eyes.' He just steps up and whallops the pill to the extreme corner of the lot. And the man who isn't a natural hitter seldom improves, no matter what he may do to improve his 'batting eye.'"

TENER TO BE HEAD OF NATIONAL LEAGUE

Former Governor of Pennsylvania Will Succeed John Lynch—Had Career on Professional Diamond.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Nov. 29.—When the National League magnates meet in this city on December 3, Governor Tener, of Pennsylvania, will be chosen to succeed John Lynch as president of the league. This means that an old-time ball player will supplant an old-time umpire as head of the senior base ball organization. On the diamond, Tener has been a notable success. He is looked upon by the National League moguls as the one man capable of instilling harmony among the different factions of the league and bringing in the old organization up once more on even terms with the healthy younger rival, the American League.

John Kinley Tener was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, July 25, 1863. He came to America at the age of nine, was educated in the public schools of Pittsburgh and at the age of eighteen became a clerk in an office in the Smoky City. His health soon broke down and upon the advice of physicians he sought outdoor employment. While working as a clerk he had earned five dollars a game pitching for local ball teams on Saturday afternoons and gained considerable fame as a player. His friends, among them William H. Locke, later a justice of the supreme court of the United States, persuaded him that he would make good as a professional.

In 1885 Tener obtained his first professional engagement as first baseman of the Pittsburgh club. At that time he stood 6 feet 3 inches and weighed 200 pounds. He was released before the season was half over and joined the Baltimore team. At his own request he was released to the Haverhill, Mass., club, where he played until the close of the season. He again obtained a position with a business house in Pittsburgh but continuing to play baseball at every opportunity.

His brilliant record as a pitcher in and around Pittsburgh brought him to the notice of A. G. Spalding and led to a job with Capt. Anson's old Chicago White Stockings. Tener more than made good in fast company and acquired a national reputation as a pitcher. He was one of the men chosen by Spalding to make the famous baseball tour of the world with the White Stockings and All-Nationals in 1888-9, and acted as secretary as well as playing great ball.

Mr. Tener's career as a National League player lasted from 1887 to 1890. In 1891 he abandoned the game and settled in Charleston, Pennsylvania, where he acquired interests in several large corporations, became president of a bank, and the head of a street railway company. His fortune is estimated as close up to a million dollars.

In 1909 Mr. Tener went to congress, and on the expiration of his term he was nominated for governor of Pennsylvania by the republicans, and elected. His term will expire on January 1, 1915. He is a Past Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and prominently connected with several other organizations. Governor Tener made a good record as governor, and enjoys genuine popularity in the state. From the time he quit baseball nearly a quarter of a century ago, until last winter, Mr. Tener was in no manner connected with the national game, but devoted his whole energy and attention to business and politics. His re-entry into the sphere of baseball was made when he helped the late William H. Locke to purchase the Philadelphia National League club from Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati. Now that he is the head president of the National League, he will, no doubt, dispose of his Philadelphia baseball holdings.

BASEBALL CHATTER.

The directors of the Northern League have transferred the Minneapolis club to Fargo, North Dakota, and the St. Paul club to Fort William, Ontario.

Dick Smith, who managed the Scranton team last season, has signed to pilot the Ironton, Ohio, State League team next season. Manager Charlie Doolin of the Philadelphia Nationals has booked games with the New York Yankees and the Washington Nationals for next spring.

According to the official batting averages lively batters in the International League, twenty in the National League hit for .300 or better. Two games in Los Angeles netted the Comiskey-McGraw combination nearly $10,000 over and above the expenses incurred there. The American tour netted a total of $97,240 for the thirty-one games played.

Larry Lajoie comes across with a nice boost for Jack Sheridan, the veteran American umpire. "There never was a better umpire in the history of the game than Jack Sheridan," pipes the great second sacker.

"Dots" Miller, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is the latest big leaguer to take up golf. Like Christy Mathewson, "Chief" Bender, Johnny Myers, "Hack" Engel and Joe Wood, "Dots" says that golf is the greatest recreation for a ball player.

It must be a busy winter for Heinie Zimmerman of the Cubs. According to the "Dops," Zim has been traded four or five times since the season closed, and now he has been signed to manage the Chicago Federal League team.

Harry Wolverton, former manager of the New York Yankees, who is now in charge of the Sacramento team of the Pacific Coast League, has received an offer from Japan to take a team of Coast League players there for a series in December.

WITH THE BOXERS.

Mike Gibbon and Clarence Ferns have been signed for a mull to take place in New Orleans December 10.

Packey McFarland has been guaranteed $5,000 to meet Jack Britton in a ten-round bout in Milwaukee December 2.

Buck Crouse has thrown his manager, "Reddy" Mason, overboard, and signed Allie Smith of Buffalo as a pilot.

K. O. Brown, the New York lightweight, is again on the sick list and will not be able to box again for some time.

Frank Klaus, the Pittsburgh middleweight, and his manager, George Engle, are getting ready to sail for Paris next month.

STATE STREET

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slawh."

State street is one of those world's thoroughfares which need no address. Even the residents of England and other asylums of dense ignorance regarding America, know that State street is in Chicago, and is the most prominent gash in its business center. State street is one of Chicago's original streets, and has now been doing business for almost eighty years. It begins north of the Chicago river, crosses it in a scene of inextricable confusion, and proceeds southward far past the outmost layers of the horizon. No one knows how far State street goes, except the surveyors who laid it out. They abandoned it only because they got foot-sore.

State street is wide and straight. It is also deep in places. It varies from Regal state at Randolph to shocking state a few blocks south. In sections it is twenty stories high; in other sections it is only knee high, and is moved twice a year. It contains the greatest retail store in the world, and also some of the finest carriages raised around Chicago. Four million people shop along its sides in the loop district, and several thousand others raise turnips twenty miles south.

State street is the home of the famous Masonic Temple, which has been turned around on its foundation for confounding strangers by confounding Chicago sharpers once a week for the last twenty years. It has a dozen stores, varying in size from 10 to 100 acres. It has side-layers deep with humanity. State street pedestrians are geared higher than any others on earth, and the guileless foreigner who attempts to participate in the double track marathon race always in progress on its walks retires after a few blocks with skinned heels and a bruised disposition.

State street is twenty miles long at the least calculation, but tourists are not supposed to bother with more than a mile of it. For one

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"Somebody said that 'it couldn't be done,' but with a chuckle replied, 'That maybe it couldn't,' but he would be one. Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried. So he buckled right in with the trace of a grin. On his face. If he worried he hid it. He started to sing as he tackled the thing. That couldn't be done—and he did it!"

"Somebody scoffed: 'Oh, you'll never do that.' At least, no one ever has done it. But he took off his coat and he took off his hat. And the first thing we knew he'd begun it. With the lift of his chin and a bit of a grin. Without any doubting or quiddit. He started to sing as he tackled the thing. That couldn't be done—and he did it!"

"There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done. There are thousands to prophesy failure. There are thousands to point out to you one by one. The dangers that wait to assail you. But just buckle in with a bit of a grin. Then take off your coat and go to work. Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing. That 'cannot be done'—and 'you'll do it.'—Selected.

The century in which we live is rich in treasures worked out of barren fields which to the average toiler gave no promise of results. The prairie schooner which crossed the desert prairies, and climbed the mountains half a century ago, in search of gold, has been succeeded by the overland trains, and the journey which consumed weary months of hardship and privation is now accomplished in as many days. These same great arteries of trade and commerce supply every village and hamlet in the land with the fruits of the western slope, which have long since ceased to be luxuries, because of their abundance through generous distribution. These marvelous changes have taken place because of men who looked at impossibilities. They looked at the rugged mountain side, and pictured a highway winding its way to the summit, and then went to work to transform the picture into a thing of life.

On the Spur of the Moment

Contributed.
The shades of night were falling fast. A car appeared at last, at last. The conductor wore a nickel smile. And yelled, "Step forward in the aisle!"

"Try not to pass," the fat man said; "Hang onto the strap that's over your head; You've only got another mile. So, please step forward in the aisle!"

"Please let me out," the maiden said; "I'm squeezed too tight and nearly dead." The car is stopped; in more folks pile. Then: "Please step forward in the aisle!"

Note on a Certain Lady.
I'm acquainted with a lady fair, I think you've met her, too. She "never has a thing to wear." Does that sound strange to you? But still, "without a thing to wear," She goes out in the storm. And strange to say, this lady fair, Somehow keeps nice and warm.

It seems "without a thing to wear" She'd be afraid some day. Somebody would a warrant swear. Because she went that way.

The Melancholy Fate of Grimes.
Old Grimes is dead, that good old man. We'll never see him more. He used to wear an old gray coat That buttoned down before. Old Mrs. Grimes she wore a dress That buttoned up behind. She made him button it one day. He died, from going blind.

Hickeyville Items.
Old Man Hicks says a chocolate Sunday must be a darn delicious drink. Hank Tumins was out driving last week. He drove a forty foot well for Anse Judson. Grandpa Bibbins found a trial bottle of Doc Hank's tonic in his whiskers this week. He had missed it since early last spring. The Hickeyville Ice Store nearly all night Thursday. It did not break up and let the fellows go home until nearly 9 o'clock.

Rev Hudnut said he was going to exchange pulpits with the preacher over the West Hickeyville Ice Store, but everybody what went to church was fooled as the same old pulpit was there. Preachers can, used up, and in a short time all building enterprises would come to an end. What happened? We discovered that the great God who planted the forests also planted the gravel and sand beds and ribbed the continent with a limitless supply of iron ore, both more accessible than the forest, because more evenly distributed. Today iron and concrete construction have largely taken the place of wood.

It is an open secret that we waste more fuel than we burn, and no means has yet been discovered to prevent the waste. This is one of the unsolved problems for the new generation, and some bright boy will work it out. When the heat which now goes up the chimney is distributed through the house, more than half the fuel now consumed will be saved, and the natural supply will be given a new lease of life.

The corn contest, recently closed, was an object lesson worth studying. It demonstrated that forty-six bright boys, on forty-six average farms, more than doubled the average yield of corn.

An old farmer said the other day: "It can't be done, and I don't believe the boys did it." There may be other people in the county of the same opinion. If so, they impugn the honesty and integrity of both the boy and his father.

The fact that it was done, and that the ten prize winners averaged one hundred bushels to the acre, suggests the thought that the secrets of soil and seed and intelligent cultivation are still mysteries to the minds of some people who call themselves farmers.

"It can be done," and when the boys of today become the men of tomorrow, the average farm will double its production, because science and intelligence are working together, and this strong combination always produces results. When forty acres of land is made to do the work of eighty, the "man behind the gun" is the winner from every angle. That's what intensified farming means, and the boy of today has caught a glimpse of its great possibilities.

A blind girl stood at an office desk, the other day, and said: "I am looking for work, can you help me?" The friend addressed was familiar with the blind, and knew something about their hopes and ambitions, as well as their limitations.

He said to her, "What can you do, and what would you like to do?" "Oh," she answered, "I would like to teach the piano, but I can't find the pupils, and so I am ready to take up anything to make an honest living. I have a little sight and might do light work in a factory, but the law don't permit us to work where there is machinery."

She was fitted out with an equipment for canvassing, but came back in a few days discouraged, because she lacked what many seeing people lack, the faculty of salesmanship.

The problem of the blind girl has always been perplexing, because almost every avenue is closed to her, and obstacles which she can not overcome constantly confront her, but she is in a class by herself, so far as this is concerned.

The most of us are blessed with all our faculties and obstacles are simply blessings in disguise. The thing which develops physical strength is exercise, and mental and moral fibre develop through a liberal investment of mind and heart.

But just buckle in with a bit of a grin. Then take off your coat and go to work. Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing. That cannot be done, and you'll do it."—Selected.

joke once in awhile. But there was one consolation. The West Hickeyville teller was just as badly fooled as we was. Miss Pansy Tibbits sent down to the city for some quinine and they sent it in capsules. She says she don't like to get quinine that way as it took too long to shuck the dum things before taking 'em. Folks all thought she was eatin' peanuts.

Afterthoughts.
The United States has notified the Santo Domingo army that he must get sober and go to work. If the earthquakes continue, the popular dance in Panama should be the Culebra wiggle.

There is always a question as to whether we have had our Indian summer or whether it is yet coming. Cartoons are suggested for the Congressional Record. No use, it couldn't be made any funnier than it is now.

Lincoln split rails, but the statesmen of today split mairs.

Our Washington News.
Hon. T. Marshall of Indiana, who is journeying here for four years, expects to take up checkers and dominoes to help him pass away the time.

It is estimated that 15,000 office-seekers left Washington today, a rumor having gained circulation to the effect that the senators would abolish the free lunch.

Feminine Limitations.
There are few women that equal the greatest men in the field of art. Women have a genius for mothering. But they seldom carry over the greatness of their motherhood into the field of art. "HIAWATHA"

(The Indian Passion Play) at Lyric Theater Monday and Tuesday.)

A poetic moment in a perfect setting, and one that the Spectator will not soon forget.—From a two-page article in the "Outlook."

The white man recognizes its solemnity and is too much impressed to applaud, but gazes in silence, in respect, at the simplicity, the beauty and dignity, the greatness of the race-drama of this thin, red line.—American Monthly Magazine.

A moment after you have found a seat, you are content. You have gone back through countless ages and are listening while Gitche Manito calls the tribes of men together.—New York Sunday Sun.

It was a picture of indescribable beauty.—Boston Herald.

"Hiawatha" must be seen to be appreciated. It is convincing and realistic.—Boston Herald.

"Hiawatha" depicts every phase of the Indian's social and religious life, and all his customs and ceremonies.—New York Evening Post.

Each individual who sees this entertainment seems to come away with the feeling that he has made a discovery. He can hardly wait to tell his friends about it.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

Hiawatha is a finely rounded and strikingly beautiful work, notable for its marvelous attention to details. It is, as far as I know, the only true picture of Indian life. The picture is set in a frame of surpassing magnificence. As a spectacle, it is unique.—W. Stephen Bush in Moving Picture World.

"Hiawatha" is a splendid production and one which is bound to create interest among almost any collection of people. The film is flawless in action and plot and interesting to the last degree. The scenes are truly beautiful, and they have been well photographed and finely toned throughout.—The Billboard.

It is a most worthy effort and an artistic success. The enthusiastic manner in which it was received at its initial presentation, foreshadows the success it will meet in other places. The locations chosen for the many scenes are beautiful beyond description.—New York Morning Telegraph.

Having twice seen your moving picture play of "Hiawatha" and having collected myself some of the specimens loaned you by the Museum to use in some of the scenes, I am happy to say that I think your production is as accurate as it is now possible to obtain.—Alanson Skinner, Asst. Curator American Museum of Natural History, New York.

A Dependable Christmas Store:

"There is one thing about The Big Store," says a woman. "If you read about something in the store news and then go and buy it, you always find it comes up to expectations when you get it home." Of course it does. The store holds its special place in this community because of the thousands of patrons it has and keeps. And the way to make patrons isn't to fool them on something that they paid out their money for. As the Xmas season draws on, it is well to remember these things and to depend on the store that you know by experience is dependable. A great deal of the Christmas shopping is done with a rush. There isn't time to think things over and to make comparisons as carefully as you might at other seasons. So it is the every-day-in-the-year dependable store that it is safest to pin your faith to at this season.

Brief Synopsis of "HIAWATHA"

(Lyric Theater, Monday and Tuesday)

PART I.
GITCHE MANITO (The Indian God) calls warriors of different tribes together to chide them for warring with each other. He bids them wash off war paint, bury war clubs, and smoke the pipe of peace. They comply. He promises to send a prophet, "a deliverer of the nations," who shall guide, teach and help them.

MANY YEARS later, Nokomis, daughter of the Moon, warns her daughter Wenonah to beware of the fickle West Wind, Mudjekeewis. Wenonah heads not the warning; is wooed by Mudjekeewis; a child is born; Mudjekeewis deserts Wenonah, who dies in her anguish. This child is Hiawatha, the prophet promised by Gitche Manito. Hiawatha is taken to the lodge of his grandmother, Nokomis, and reared "by the shores of the Gitche Gumee." His coming is celebrated with a Dance of Worship, as the people realize this baby is to be their leader. When five years of age, Sagoo teaches Hiawatha to shoot and dance. Sends him into the forest to kill the red deer. A feast is made in his honor, to which all the village is invited.

PART II.
HIAWATHA has grown to manhood. Traveling through the Dacotah country seeking his father, Mudjekeewis, he stops to purchase arrows of the ancient arrow maker. He sees for the first time, Minnehaha, the arrow maker's lovely daughter. He returns to the lodge of Nokomis. As is customary with all Indian youths, Hiawatha goes into the forest to fast. As a reward of his fasting, the Spirit of Life sends to him Mondamin, or the Indian corn. Returning to the village, "he makes known to his people this new gift of the Great Spirit." Dreaming still of Minnehaha, he tells Nokomis that he expects to wed this daughter of the Dacotahs. Nokomis tries to dissuade him, but his arguments prevail. He again departs for the Falls of Minnehaha. On the way he slays a deer and lays it at the feet of Laughing Water. The wooing is successful, and Hiawatha returns to the lodge of Nokomis with his bride. A feast is prepared, at which tribal dances are introduced.

PART III.
PAU-PUK-KEEWIS, the mischief maker, engages Sagoo and others in a gambling game, winning all their belongings, and Sagoo's nephew, Face-in-a-Mist. Seeking fresh adventures, he goes into the village, finds Hiawatha's lodge deserted and wrecks it. Hiawatha returns; sees the mischief done by Pau-Puk-Keewis. Vowing vengeance, he starts in pursuit. After many escapes, Pau-Puk-Keewis falls from a cliff and is dashed to death on the rocks below. THE FAMINE. The village is buried under snow. People are starving. Minnehaha is dying. The ghosts, Famine and Fever enter her wigwam. Hiawatha goes into the forest seeking food but finds none. He appeals to Gitche Manito. Minnehaha's voice is heard miles away calling him. He rushes home to find his Laughing Water cold in death. Seven long days and nights he sits at her feet "speechless, motionless, unconscious of the daylight or the darkness."

PART IV.
Women of the village prepare Minnehaha's body for burial. Hiawatha's lamentation. The burial of Minnehaha in the forest deep and darkness. From his doorway Hiawatha watches the fire at her grave to light her soul upon its journey. THE FOLLOWING SPRING. Sagoo returns and tells of having seen a great ship in which were people with their faces painted white. The people do not believe him, as they have never before heard of the Pale-Face. The coming of the Black-Robe priest. Black-robe tells them of Christ and the blessed Virgin. Hiawatha bids farewell to Nokomis and his people, telling them his work is finished; that he is going to the place prepared for him in the "Islands of the Blessed." He steps into his canoe and standing erect, with outstretched arms, sails away into the sinking sun. The people on the margin chant a long farewell.

KING GEORGE MAKES FRIENDS OF THOSE CHOSEN BY FATHER

Closest Companions of King Edward Favored With Invitations to Court Social Functions.

London, Nov. 28.—King George, if not Queen Mary, is making an especial point of being friendly with the late King Edward's friends. At a number of house parties, where the names of guests are first submitted to His Majesty, it has been noticed that many of those who figured prominently in court circles in the last reign are again to be found.

At the shooting party given by Viscount Iveagh at Blenheim for the king, for instance, Count Albert Mensdorff and the Marquis de Soverel, who were two of King Edward's closest friends, were among the guests. They have the reputation of being two of the most entertaining men in sosure a majority for women's suffrage in the next parliament. They have concentrated in the hope of arranging the organization of suffragists; electors in the constituencies before the general election. The idea is that these electors should put "suffrage first"; in other words, that they should inform the candidates that their votes will be given in the interest of women's suffrage. Lord Lytton and Pethick Lawrence are both in favor of the plan.

While the Duke of Westminster and his influential committee of titled and distinguished men have been raising something less than $50,000 for their half million fund to train British athletes for the next Olympic games at Berlin, the trade unionists of the country have, without any great effort, raised over a quarter of a million dollars for the wives and children of the Dublin strikers, besides sending them several ship loads of provisions and coal. At the same time another big fund has been raised for the widows and orphans of the recent Welsh colliery disaster. It all goes to show that while the British people are still willing to subscribe to funds raised for practical and charitable purposes, such mat-

MISSIONARIES TELL OF PRIVATIONS IN HANDS OF BANDITS

Two Lay in Hiding Within a Few Feet of Robbers and Hear Their Death Planned.

Peking, Nov. 29.—The American and Norwegian missionaries who last month were prisoners in the hands of "White Wolf" and his band of one thousand brigands in Northern China, suffered great privation and often were exposed to extreme danger. For days they were separated from their families, with no knowledge of the safety of their wives and children, and suffering the pangs of hunger and thirst. Two men missionaries lay in hiding within a few feet of a group of bandits and heard their death planned in case they were found.

The Rev. H. S. Fauske, a Norwegian, members of the Lutheran Brethren Mission, speaks as follows:

"He promised not to tell where we were, and gave us water to drink and some cold rice to eat. He did not get an opportunity to give us more than on account of the presence of the robbers, but each day after that we got from him a little rice and water, enough to keep us alive."

"The last day but one that we were in the straw Wang found out and told us that our families were in the Yamen, where the robbers had made their headquarters. Of course we were very anxious, for we did not even then know whether they had food or not, or whether they were being well treated, and no message could be sent to them."

"Professor Christin Stokstad and Dr. Johnson came to Tsao-yang, on Nov. 3, and on order of Vice President Li Yuan Heng, took command of the troops. If they had not arrived the city would have been burned and we all would have perished."

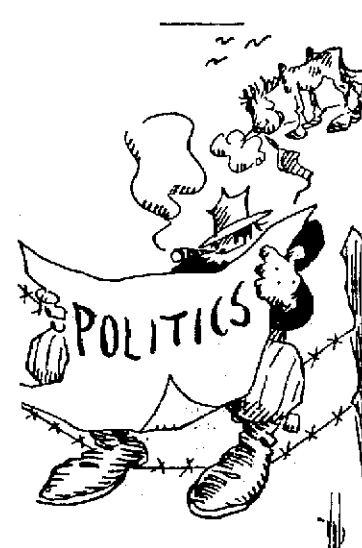

"The robbers tried to escape from the city and pass the troops, but were driven back. October 7 they managed to get by the Nanyang troops, who did not do their duty."

"About four hundred of the robbers were killed in Tsao-yang. They murdered no less than two thousand people in the city."

"On the morning of October 7, Wang took Mr. Holm's card to his wife, who had already returned from the Yamen to the mission station, and as soon as she answered we went back to the station. The advisor to 'White Wolf' had assisted the woman in such a way that she did not allow any of the robbers to go into the Yamen and do them harm. A native of Tsao-yang, who was in the Yamen, saved them food."

"It was impossible to remain at the mission on account of the stench rising from the dead bodies lying around, so we left the next day for Paocheng with an escort of troops. We were all in a weakened condition and could hardly stand. Mr. and Mrs. Holm and child and Miss Sather, also an American, all of whom are in a serious state of health from the shock and terrible exposure, will leave shortly for the United States."

FIND "STOP THIEF" A SCREAMING FARCE

Audience at Myers Theatre Last Evening Enjoys Comedy Crowded With Mirth Provoking Action.

"Stop Thief," a farce of Cohan and Harris' most approved type, brimful of action and side-splitting comedy, simply carried the audience at Myers theatre last evening from one laugh to another. A carefully selected and thoroughly trained cast was responsible for the vivid reality with which the comedy situations were put over in rapid succession, while several of the players stood out as artists of a high order.

Carlyle Moore has taken kleptomaniac for the subject matter of his play and around it has woven a complication of laugh-stirring lites and situations which are simply irresistible. Beginning in action just before a wedding is to be performed in the Carr household, and drawing into the thick of the plot the absent-minded old prospective father-in-law and a nervous bridegroom, who becomes suddenly haunted with the illusion that he is afflicted with kleptomaniac, a professional thief who is smuggled into the house by the maid, his co-worker, and who poses as a detective, early holds the whip and while one husband after another disappears in a most astonishing manner. Valuable jewels and wedding gifts are taken with astonishing rapidity by the clever crook and his accomplice and are readily found on either the distracted father or the fidgeting groom, whenever the thieves fear detection, while the two innocent persons finally become quite ready to accept responsibility for the whole business. The comedy that they have unconsciously carried away all the missing articles.

When the police are finally called in at the behest of an outsider who demands to redeem some stock certificates upon which Mr. Carr has loaned him money, and when the money and certificates alike are spirited away beneath their very noses, the blue-coats are also baffled and made sport of by the clever crook in a most laughable manner. Of course the bride is returned when the thief and his co-worker are found out, and they are forgiven when it is learned that they are in love and that they will never attempt any more burglaries. Then the curtain goes down on a triple marriage ceremony.

John Findlay as William Carr, the bride's father, and Charles Brown as Cluney, the bridegroom, were responsible for the best of the comedy acting. They occupied the center of the stage most of the time although the action followed so fast that nearly every member of the cast seemed to share the honors. John Webster as Doogan the thief did a very clever bit of acting, and Susanne Willis as his partner made an excellent lady's maid with her blank stare which was so thoroughly disconcerting to her employers. Dixie Delaney as Mary, whose ear trumpet was forever being mislaid and lost along with the valuables, had an interesting part, Nan Francis as the distracted bride and Lella Frost as her vivacious young sister, were both capable players.

It might be noted that the whole farce has a clear vein of satire hinting at proverbial police stupidity, running through it, for the officers and plain clothes detectives were as much the dunes of the crook as the members of the frantic household. Of course the whole thing is impossible but it wouldn't be a farce unless that were so. And as a cure for the blues it can't be beaten.

AMBASSADOR RENTS HOUSE IN FASHIONABLE PART OF LONDON

Ambassador W. H. Page and his London house.

Dr. Walter H. Page, the American ambassador to England, has rented the house at 6 Grosvenor Square, one of the fashionable quarters of London. The ambassador's salary is $17,500 a year, a sum probably insufficient to meet house rent.

city, and of course are notable for perfectly fitting and up-to-date clothes. Sir Derek and Lady Keppel, Sir Ernest Cassell and Leopold de Rothschild, the last two King Edward's financial advisers, and all close friends of the last court, also were present. The members of the Guinness family, of which Lord Iveagh is the head, are in favor with the present sovereign as they were with the last.

Norman Brookes to Return. Norman Brookes, the great Australian tennis player, who has not appeared in first-class tennis since his defeat by James C. Parke in the last Davis Cup competition in Australia, has decided to return and will play in the tournaments on the Riviera this winter. It all goes well with him he will make another attempt to win the All-English championship next year.

This of course means that Australia, with the help of Mr. Brookes, who is still considered one of the best, if not the best, individual player in the world, is going to make a strong bid to take the Davis cup away from America next year and give it another trip to the Antipodes. On the Riviera, Mr. Brookes will again have an opportunity of meeting his old competitor, Anthony F. Wilding. When last Mr. Brookes was considered the best player of the two, but Mr. Wilding has improved so much that the struggle should be a very keen one.

Bryce Busy in Retirement.

The Right Honorable James Bryce, when he left the British embassy at Washington, announced that he was retiring from public life. That may have been true, but like many another retired British statesman, he is finding that he is busier in his retirement than he was as an ambassador.

Since his return from his around-the-world trip, Mr. Bryce has had not many days to himself. He did for a few weeks go into retirement at his modest country home, "Hindale," Forest Row, Sussex, but this retirement was almost entirely taken up in writing for Mr. Bryce is certain to give the public something about the countries he visited after leaving America, and perhaps a book about America. His real work, however, will doubtless be, as one writer has aptly put it, "to express the needs of the community upon the broader sides of life." Since his return home Mr. Bryce has delivered a number of addresses on a great variety of subjects. As popular as he was in America as a speaker, he is likely to become quite as popular in his own country.

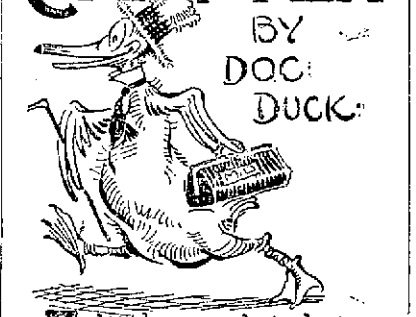

The former ambassador to America is not alone in this practice of devoting his talents to the enlightenment and services of his country, after his retirement from active work. Another of these is Sir Edward Fry, who a few days ago attained the age of eighty-six. It is twenty-one years since Sir Edward resigned his seat as a Lord Justice of the Court of Appeal, and in that time he has served in many useful capacities, not the least of which has been as one of England's representatives in the peace conferences at The Hague.

New Suffragist Plan. A number of suffragists, members of the various political parties, have made an arrangement which it can be successfully carried out, will enters as the Olympic games will not induce them to part with their money, even when the plan is backed by dukes and other members of the nobility.

The raising of the Dublin and Welsh funds, however, is taken as another evidence of the growing wealth and close co-operation of the trades unionists of the country. Much of the money has come from the workers and their organizations, which had only just completed a fund of much greater proportions to guarantee the publication for three years at least of a daily paper, "The Citizen," which espouses the principles of trades unionism.

of his experiences: "The robbers broke into our mission compound early on the morning of September 26. They were dressed in silks and satins and had silk girdles hanging almost to the ground. Each carried a rifle and revolver. About five or six men pointed their rifles at myself and the Rev. George Holm, an American, and demanded silver money, our other valuables, and that we give them our guns or revolvers. Mr. Holm had no weapons and I had only one revolver, which I gave up."

"They took Mr. Holm captive and went away with him. Later fifteen or twenty more bandits appeared, demanding silver and, because we did not have any, took me prisoner. They hanged twenty rifles of mine, but of course I had none. Then they insisted that I manufacture rifles, as I was a foreigner, and therefore able to do so."

"On the 27th the robbers allowed me to go back to the mission station to secure food for my wife and children, but upon arrival at the station I could find no trace of my family. I did, however, meet Mr. Holm, who also had secured permission from his captors to return and look after his family."

"Everything in the mission had been destroyed, and all food, clothing and movables had been stolen."

"Mr. Holm and I went into the streets to try to find our families, but our search was fruitless."

"At this time the Chinese troops which had arrived at Tsao-yang, started to attack the robbers by firing from outside the city walls. The shots whistled through the streets in which we were, spluttering up against the buildings. This alarmed the robbers, who immediately started for another part of the city. We took advantage of the opportunity to make our escape, and fed to an old Chinese house which at that moment was vacant."

"We ran into a side room and hid ourselves in a pile of old straw. No sooner were we concealed than the robbers came and began their search for us. They pulled the straw about, jumped on top of it and ran their hands over it. We were again and again. The bayonets just missed my legs."

"For four days the robbers lived in the same house, in a room opposite to us. For three days and nights we were without water, and food. We hardly slept for even days and nights, for the robbers were all that time in the same house, most of the time in the adjoining room, and we were smoking opium and we frequently heard them say that when they caught us they would kill us. To only time we could move a mouse was when a pig moved about, rustling the straw in which we were hidden, or when the rats scampered through it. We were almost choked with the dust in the straw, and suffered from the burning in our throats, noses and eyes. I chewed on my handkerchief for had a day in an attempt to moisten my mouth. When I could stand it no longer I crawled out of the straw in the night and groped about until I found about a can full of water, which I drank with eagerness. It was dirty water, left in a washbasin, but it revived me and my heart began to work better."

"That morning the owner of the house, a Mr. Wang who was treated as a slave by the robbers, came in to hide clothing in the straw where we were concealed. We spoke to him, and he was startled at finding us."

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By

(Copyrighted.)

One of the hardest positions to fill around the circus is that of laying out the people at the different hotels. This work, which has been done away with for some years, but in the early wagon show days and twenty-five years ago with the railroad shows it had to be done and it was a position that but few around the show could fill for a sater would always be from sixty to one hundred people to care for and this work meant the registering of all the people coming to the different hotels, and assigning them to their rooms, and, necessarily, when you had to care for so many the greater portion of the rooms would not be any too good. The man that did this work would scarcely more than get through with it, when the women would be up through the hotel looking into the different rooms to see if their room was the poorest or the best and if you gave a woman and her husband a good room one day, you would have to give them a poor one the next, and keep changing around the best you could to satisfy them.

Unless this man was some kind of an executive officer about the show, so that the women did not dare kick and find fault, his troubles would be many.

I had always done this work with the Burr Robbins show and for the reason that my position was such that they did not dare to find much fault, yet it was hard to satisfy all of them. Later when I went with the Adam Forepaugh show there was a performer doing this work in connection with his and receiving $5 a week extra pay, but before the show had been on the road very long he quit the work for the reason that he could not give satisfaction and somebody was finding fault every day, running to Mr. Forepaugh and telling him that they had not been treated right and always seemed to get the worst in the hotels. This young man quit the work and Mr. Forepaugh appointed another one and it had not been so long until he had had enough of it and notified Mr. Forepaugh that he would not do it any longer. Mr. Forepaugh said to me, "Dave, you are not so very busy in the morning and I wish you would take up this work for a while until we get somebody else that we think can do it without having so much trouble."

At this time we were only going to hotels every Sunday. During the balance of the week everybody made their homes in the sleepers. I said to him that I would do it for a while till he could find somebody, but I said, "Governor, of all the undesirable jobs around the circus, this is the worst."

Before I commenced to work or anyone around the show knew that I was to do it, I went back into the different dressing rooms and notified the people that I was going to do this work and that should use every effort possible to please everyone and that if a man and his wife got a poor room one Sunday I would see that they got a better one the next, but that I would not expect any kicks to come from any of them while I was doing the work and if they did and made up their minds that they were not being used right there would always be money enough in the ticket wagon and they had better go there and get their pay and find some show where they would be used better.

I did this work for the balance of the season and then said to Mr. Forepaugh, "Now, Governor, I am going to select a man for this work next summer, but for me, never again." And this was the last work of this kind or any other outside of my regular business, and the ticket wagon that ever did with the Forepaugh show.

A short time ago I heard from an old friend by the name of Mike Coyle, who several years ago retired from the business and is living in his old home with a maiden sister at Weedsport, N. Y., about ten or twelve miles southwest of Syracuse. Mike Coyle is now 76 years old and has probably put in more years with the circus than any man living.

He started in the business before he was out of his teens as a bill poster and from that time on till five or six years ago Mike Coyle has always been around the circus. Among the best shows that he traveled with were Thayer and Noyes, Van Amberg and Company, Howe's Great London, and from that on up to Adam Forepaugh, the Barnum and the Buffalo Bill shows.

For the ten years that I was with the Adam Forepaugh show Mike Coyle and I were the closest of friends and while Mike had charge of the business and I was the ticket wagon, I was the one who was doing the work and I was the one who was getting the pay.

off on someone or anyone whom he happened to be doing business with, and the old lady asked him what part of the country he came from in Ireland.

"Oh," he said, "my good woman, my people are Scotch. We came from Scotland."

The old lady brightened up and she said, "Stop your nonsense. Did that face of yours and your name Mike Coyle? And ye tell me that ye're Scotch? That might do to tell some people, but ye can't put any such jokes as that over on me. I would not be afraid to bet ye, Mike Coyle, that ye would tell ye the county in Ireland that ye came from."

Some of the bill posters working for Mr. Coyle heard the conversation and for many years after, if they could find Mike Coyle around the show, they would say, "Perhaps he's come back to Scotland where he came from."

It was along in eighty-five or eighty-six that Adam Forepaugh sent for Mike Coyle to come back to the show and hired him for the next season to go ahead as the railroad contractor at more than three times the salary he had been getting with the Burr Robbins show.

HESITATION WALTZ
IS A PRETTY DANCE

New Glide is Successfully Introduced Last Evening at Thanksgiving Week Dance—Many Attend.

Forty couples assembled last evening at the East Side Odd Fellows' hall, where they enjoyed a beautiful Thanksgiving week dance given by the members of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs O. G. W. The affair was most unique, and particularly so because of the fact the new hesitation waltz was introduced among the younger set most successfully for the first time.

Miss Gertrude McGilley played a piano accompaniment to the music, and at every waltz the couples would turn their whole attention to the new hesitation dance, which is regarded as one of the prettiest dances among the many.

Combination Tool Has a Variety of Other Uses Also.

A new combination tool has been invented by an Illinois man. It is known as a wrench-plier but can also be used as a wire cutter, pipe tapper, thread cutter, screw driver and a score of other things. The wrench-plier of the monkey variety is on one end of the handle and the pliers on the other end. Instead of interfering with each other these functions give firm grips for whichever is used. Furthermore, the die seat instead of being placed directly in the end is nearer the center of balance and enables the user to take both hands to his work, thus ensuring true and even threads. This compact, light, strong tool is easy to carry and saves a workman the necessity of "fishing" a pocketful of others with him for small jobs.

SAFE RAT TRAP

Safe to Set, That Is, But Not Safe for the Rat to Touch.

Most rat traps have to be set with great care. If the owner does not want to run the risk of having his or her fingers pinched. This is particularly true of a new type that kills a rodent by kicking him in the head rather than by strangling him to death. But a Pennsylvania man has designed an improvement on this form of trap and claims that a child can set his trap with the foot and without danger of injury. The secret of this device is a strong spring that normally holds the two jaws of wood together. When a rat strikes at the bait he releases the spring and is caught, at the same time getting a knock that usually puts him out of his misery at once. To set this trap, all that need be done is to attach the bait, put the device on the floor and press it together with the foot.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS SUNDAY OBSERVANCE

Alvin Reis, Lecturer for State Association. Will Speak at Union Meeting Sunday Night.

[SPECIAL TO THIS GAZETTE.]

Evansville, Nov. 29.—In many cities in this state anti-tuberculosis Sunday is annually observed. It will be first introduced to Evansville next Sunday, Nov. 30, when a union service will be held in the M. E. church at seven o'clock in the evening. The state anti-tuberculosis association sends its lecturer, Alvin Reis, to give the address of the evening. "Muscle Maladies."

Muscle maladies must be the names henceforth of all of these mis-called "nervous" inflammations, and with this discovery of the cause comes at once a simple way to bring about a cure. Most cases of weak nerves or "neurasthenia" mean overfed, flabby, weak and neglected muscles. The thing to do is to rejuvenate those muscular tissues.

To Save Money.

Economy, rightly understood, requires careful study and consistent action. A knowledge of market prices and money value are necessary for an intelligent solution of the cost of living. But such knowledge of itself does not suffice. Consistent action is equally if not more important. The "head and heart" of a family must be one in their efforts. They must work in unison.

If you are ever to have capital for investment you must save the salary.
